AUTOMOBILE DEALERS PLAN TO ORGANIZE

Met at the Hotel Myers and Elected Officers for Their New Organization

The automobile dealers of Janesville met at a luncheon last Saturday night at the Hotel Myers to form an Automobile Dealers Association. This was the third meeting of the auto dealers for that purpose and they organized an organization for the co-operation with the state automobile dealers and for their own mutual benefit. They elected James A. Drummond, president of the newly formed organization, Robert A. Bugge vice-president and William Alderman secretary and treasurer. The automobile dealers did not draw up their constitution or make any laws but turned the matter over to their attorney, Edward H. Peterson, who has charge of having their organization incorporated. The automobile dealers planned to formally announce before January first that their organization has been perfected. They also discussed the advisability of holding a "head" bench for the purpose of covering the expenses incurred by their incorporation.

DESCRIBE WORK DONE BY BOYS AND GIRLS

Young People Who Attended State Conferences Tell of Results Accomplished in the State.

At a union meeting held in the Methodist church Sunday evening, the members of the different societies had the unique privilege of listening to the boys and girls in the role of preachers. An interesting resume of the work of the older boys and girls' conferences held during the last days of November and the first days of December was given by them in an interesting and logical way.

It bids well for the potential possibilities of the future to hear these young people, simply and earnestly narrate their thoughts and feelings on the religious questions which appealed to them so vitally. The meeting was in charge of the boys' secretary, Mr. Preston, and it argues well for the influence which he exerts over the young people to see them respond well to the call of duty. The program was as follows: Prayer, Sidney Ellis; "The Organized Class," Mable Arbutnot; "The Slacker," an address by "Reddy" Elliot, reporter; Robert Lane, "Expectancy and Training," an address given by Miss Kennedy, reported by Miss Rowley; "The Quitter," address by Elliott, reported by Leon Jones; "Holds and Ideals," by Miss Jones; "What are we doing for the Other Fellow," Roy Keller; "Pass it On," Maurice Russell.

Miss Mary Barker who went with the girls to the conference, was also called on to say a few words. She voiced her appreciation of the good accomplished by these meetings and bespoke the co-operation of all in helping the young people to attend next year. Mrs. Avery also attended the girls' conference which was held this year at Sheboygan, eleven girls attending from this city. Sixteen boys attended the conference which was held at Appleton. Preston goes with them. The invitation was extended for the meeting of the next conference for girls, to be held in Janesville.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WHY?

To the Editor: Why have the telephone communications with the fire department on the east side of the river, on North Main street, been discontinued? Why? That is the question vital to every citizen of Janesville. Certainly not in the interest of economy when two recent alarms received at the west side station from the east side of the river were not properly relayed. Certainly not in the matter of efficiency, if the example set by every first-class fire department in the country is taken into consideration. Then why were they discontinued? Furthermore, when they were discontinued why was not the public notified of the fact? The public, that is, the taxpayers, pays the chief of the fire department, pays the individual firemen and the upkeep of the apparatus. Have they no rights? The mayor is the titular head of the city government. He is the supreme power above the chief of the fire department and the chief of the police department. Did he order this removal of the telephone from the Main street department? He says he did not. Then who did? What is the reason. Let us have a bit of light on this subject. Perhaps a few articles on the civic management of the fire and police department might not hurt public morals at all. There is much that might be explained and the public would be glad to hear from the chief of the fire department on this subject. Every once in a while we have a hue and cry about this or that fire hazard, and then some buildings are cited as dangerous. What happens? Nothing—absolutely nothing! Under the state law the chiefs of the various fire departments of the state are made assistant fire marshals. They have the law behind them. Why no action here? There is more to say on this subject, but first, why is the Main street fire department isolated from telephonic communication? First, it is up to the mayor, as chief of all our activities, and next it is up

AGED GARDENER PERFECTS COMBINATION OF POTATO AND DAHLIA MAKING GOOD FOOD

man, an aged gardener of this city, has succeeded in crossing the familiar Irish potato with the dahlia, the combination producing a species of potato which is believed to be far superior to that found ordinarily on the market. With the new potato one may have flowers for the decoration of his home and, when the plants have reached maturity, potatoes for his dinner.

The main value of Hickman's potato-dahlia comes from the fact that the plant follows closely the dahlia type and hence should be immune from the blight, the scourge of the northwest. The new potato is said to have a flavor far superior to that of the ordinary potato. It bears heavily.

The Reasons for the Club

To provide a way for those of moderate and even small means to bank their money.
To teach "the banking habit" to those who have never learned it.

It makes your pennies, nickels and dimes, often foolishly spent, grow into dollars; dollars grow into a fortune. Start your fortune today.

To give you a Bank connection and show you how our Bank can be of service to you.

WE PAY 3 PER CENT INTEREST IN OUR CHRISTMAS BANKING CLUB

For Old and Young

The sensible thing for all parents to do is to join our Christmas Banking Club and also put every member of their family into it. This will teach them the value of money and how to bank and HAVE MONEY. Maybe this little start you give them now may some day set them up in business or buy them a home.

How often have you wished that your parents had taught you early the value of banking your money. You would be well-off today. Don't make the same mistake with YOUR children.

SOLDIERS TOMORROW.

We have our soldiers of today, the regulars, the national guard army and the national army, and now we are to have another army for home defense to be known as the United States Guard. Next will come the call for universal military service and it will include the boys of the high school age, and then later they will be the armed force of the United States. It is coming just as sure as green apples. It may take time, but this nation is in a war, not for a day, not for a year, but until it is ended and democracy is supreme. High school boys of today will be in the trenches soon enough, and the best way is to prepare them for the preliminary training by drills. Under the direction of the Sixteenth Separate company one hundred students at the high school have enlisted in the battalion, two companies, and are receiving military instruction. Now they seek to be uniformed. They have raised part of the funds by a moving picture benefit and expect to raise more by other means and also to contribute from their own personal purses, but they are showing the right spirit and not waiting for Uncle Sam to compel them to take military training. They are evincing a spirit of preparedness that it would be well to emulate in older generations, and they should be encouraged. Citizens are urged to give them their support, to attend their drills, each Tuesday night at the Sixteenth Separate company's armory. They are the soldiers of tomorrow. They are of today. They need your support and encouragement and one visit to their weekly drills would demonstrate they are in earnest in their work of preparing for the future.

THE RED CROSS.

The Red Cross brings the breath of heaven into the hell of war! If you don't believe this, ask any returned soldier, who has had experience in France—he knows. He knows, too, that lip sympathy will not heal any wounds, but that dollar sympathy will. Just one dollar's worth of anesthetic and surgical dressings may save a soldier's life. It is such appeals as this which will make every resident of Wisconsin make an effort to join the Red Cross society, and as many of his family as can possibly do so. The object of every city in the state will be to have the largest number of service flags, according to the proportion of population. A service flag in the window is enough of a Christmas celebration for any family—and surely the boys on the battlefields of France, and who are in hospitals, will offer up a prayer for every member of the Red Cross. However, prospective members do not need the prayer as much as the sufferers need the money—so send your dollar along to the head of your chapter, or find out who are solicitors and see that one of them gets it. It isn't material who gets it, so long as it goes to the Red Cross. The main idea for our country is that everyone pay it in. It will reach the right place. Give your membership fee today—dying men can't wait your convenience, or when you happen to have an idle dollar. The big drive began today—it is a for-when conclusion that everyone will help. If there is a doubt of the man's patriotism or if it is lukewarm, his position will be fairly declared if he enters into the campaign with spirit. If he buys a membership for each one in his household, and thereby earns a service flag, he will have justified himself—he knows, too, that all soldiers are helped—not just the soldiers of Uncle Sam. The entire state is thoroughly organized, new workers have received their instructions, and on Monday morning everyone was to be seen working with the three V's to the fore and everyone in this county can help by having his fee ready when a solicitor calls.

FOR CHRONIC GROUCHES. People who are temperamentally frail may well think of the plight of poor Halifax before continuing to growl over the minor ills of life. In a city where thousands are being around dead and as many more injured, with relief trains held up by storm and the people hungry, the minor ills of life seem ridiculously small.

Much of us growl if our income is cut down, but by the war, if the house is cold on a winter day, or the weather disagreeable. The least change in our comfortable and well fed routine upsets us. When people get into that frame of mind, they are too soft to be of much use. They almost need some calamity to bring them to see life in better proportion. If they could look in for a few moments on the stricken city of Nova Scotia, they would be ashamed of their fretting over trifles. At least as we read about the misfortunes of others, let us have the decency to stop our crabbing and greet life with a smile.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE. Many economists think the Christmas tree custom is all wrong. They figure out that the land owner gets little or nothing for the budding spruce, fir, and hemlock saplings. By cutting them off, the owner throws away the future growth of a forest. Yet they are cut at a time when the farm help is not busy. The return for them is thus mostly clear profit, and they grow on poor, rough land. If the little trees are to grow up into a forest, it will at least take another generation to see them mature. The Christmas tree custom means a lot to both children and grown-ups, and it will not soon be given up. Evergreen foliage is a symbol of the continuance of life and hope. The Christmas tree brings its suggestions of merriment and festivity and young life, and it is not a real children's Christmas without it.

Well, there is some consolation in this weather. It is a tip-off that we will have our ice supply for the next summer assured. No matter if coal is high, think of the need of ice next summer. The consumer got it coming and going, but we need ice as we need coal.

There would be no serious objections if the congressman who held up the war appropriations should be sent out in the trenches with only one of those wooden guns between themselves and the Germans.

Many people have always handled high explosives as if they were so much coal or potatoes, but the Halifax explosion may make them stop and think about it.

The man who sent away a dollar to the person who advertised a secure preventive of automobile thieving, received the wise reply, "Sell the car and put the money in a Liberty bond."

It is reported that a device has been invented to enable automobiles to burn kerosene, but the dealers so far have carelessly failed to double the price.

While the soldiers shiver in unheated barracks, the congressmen that held up appropriations for them live in well steam-heated apartments.

An excellent place for the food speculators is right in jail where they can spend their time speculating when they will get out.

The terrible strain of the cost of living was again emphasized when the Chicago Cubs had to pay $75,000 to get a baseball bat.

It is evident that Mr. Hoover will have to attend at once to price-fixing the cost of baseball pitchers and catchers.

Everybody is paying more for everything, and yet everyone complains that he isn't making as much money as usual.

The Russian Bolsheviks ought to spell their name Botcheviki.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

KELLY INGRAM. His name was Kelly Ingram, he was Alabama's son. And he whistled "Yankee Doodle," as he stood beside his gun. There was laughter in his make-up, there was merriment in his face. And he knew the best traditions and the courage of his race. Now there's not a heart among us but should swell with loyal pride. When he thinks of Kelly Ingram and the splendid way he died.

On the swift Destroyer Cassin he was merely gunner's mate. But up there today I fancy he is standing with the great On that grim day last October his position on the craft. Was that portion of the vessel which the sailors christen all? There were deep sea bombs beside him to be dropped upon the fun. Who makes women folks his victims and then gloats in what he's done.

From the lookout came a warning, came a cry all sailors fear. A torpedo was approaching, and the vessel's doom was near. Ingram saw the danger, but he saw a little more. A greater menace faced them than that missile in store. If those deep sea bombs beside him were not thrown beneath the wave. Every man aboard the Cassin soon would find a watery grave.

It was death for him to linger, but he figured it he ran. And quit his post of duty, 'twould be death for every man. So he stood at his position, threw those depth bombs overboard. And when that torpedo struck them he went forth to meet his Lord. Oh I don't know how to say it, but these words the United States Should remember Kelly Ingram—he who died to save his mates.

He is doing his bit. When ma hears any talk of peace. She gets angry and throws a fit. Ma says: "Give us a ten year's war. Keep friend husband away. Yankee and Krupp, keep it up, keep it up. Hip, hip—Hurray!"

"What can I give my wife for Christmas?" asks a distracted reader of this column. There is quite a variety of presents such as men generally pick out for their wives. Here is the variety: Red celluloid toilet set. Pink celluloid toilet set. Green celluloid toilet set. White celluloid toilet set. Blue celluloid toilet set. But if you prefer to give her a useful present nothing is better than a washboard.

PORTUGAL IS LATEST EUROPEAN NATION IN WHICH REVOLUTIONISTS SEEK TO OVERTHROW GOVERNMENT

Portugal, scene of more revolutions than any other country in Europe, is in the throes of another, according to meager dispatches from Oporto and Lisbon, the capital.

It is said that a rebellion led by Dr. Sidonio Pais, former Portuguese minister to Germany, and Colonel Soares Branco and Alves Rodrigues has been successful. Pais being named president of the provisional government.

Senor Bernardino Machado was elected president of the Portuguese republic in 1915. He had been premier and minister of the interior. He took the oath of office for a four-year term October 5, 1915.

Alfonso Costa, premier, who is reported to be a captive of the revolutionists at Guarda, is a veteran of revolutions, having been an active figure in the struggles of the past. At one time a few years ago a report that he had been assassinated was spread over Europe.

REGISTRANTS URGED TO APPEAR TONIGHT

THOSE WHO RECEIVED THEIR BLANKS TODAY SHOULD GO TO COURT HOUSE THIS EVENING.

WITH QUESTIONNAIRES

Five Lawyers Will Be There for the Purpose of Filling Them Out and Filing Affidavits.

All registrants who received their questionnaires today are urged to go to the court house this evening to have them filled out by the lawyers. The local board plans to mail five per cent each evening instead of during the day so that any address changes that come in may be taken care of properly. Blanks will be mailed to every registered man who has not yet been called to Camp Grant. This means that they will be sent to all men who are in military service in some other camp, including the members of Company M now at Waco. This seems like a needless duty, but the instructions as prepared by Provost General Marchand General Crowder call for it to be done.

Registrants who come to the court house this evening and who desire to make claims for temporary exemption are advised to bring with them persons to substantiate their claims. All registrants are also advised to have such information as is asked for in the questionnaire written on a separate sheet so as to facilitate the work of the lawyers to finish it promptly.

Although several attempts were made to secure the arrest of the offender, all efforts proved futile. The facts have been given out that a local contractor has filled the radiator of his automobile with alcohol and water to prevent the water from freezing. Due to the cold weather the solution was allowed to run into a pail and the pail placed in the barn where the car was.

During the night the perpetrator of the drunkenness offense appeared on the scene and drank his fill of the solution. While at first thinking it was water, but due to the unusual strength decided to take more than a share.

The owner of the car appeared in the morning and on seeing the offender on the floor of the barn decided that his walk was necessary to relieve the effects of the alcohol and water. A short walk convinced the owner of the car that the fugitive from justice needed a long walk to rid himself of the liquor. On returning to the barn the transgressor fell into a drunken sleep and in a few hours was fit and ready to return to his duties under the direction of the owner of the car.

What makes the case of drunkenness so unusual is that the violator of the peace and dignity of the city was a male belonging to a local contractor which had mistaken the pail of alcohol and water for a pail of water.

SHOOTSELF WHILE

HUNTING FOR RABBITS

Fred Doehorn, Member of Co. C, Accidentally Shoots Self in Wrist While Hunting for Rabbits.

Earl Doehorn of Avalon, a member of Co. C, 331st Machine Gun Battalion at Camp Grant, accidentally shot himself in the left wrist while looking for rabbits at home on Saturday afternoon.

The full charge of shot from the shot gun entered his wrist, making it necessary to amputate it.

Doehorn was home on a furlough over Sunday and was just preparing to depart for Janesville with his father, Fred Doehorn, when he took up his gun and went into the yard to look for rabbits.

As he stepped on a pile of boards which were covered with snow the gun was discharged. A doctor was called from Clinton and it was found necessary to amputate the hand.

The authorities at Camp Grant were notified of the accident and word was received asking for full particulars on the part of her home. The injured man is such that he is forced to remain in the house under the care of a nurse.

Doehorn was a member of the contingent which left here on November 7 for Rockford to join the National army.

STUBBORN CASE OF DRUNKENNESS HERE

Too Much Water and Alcohol Causes the Downfall of Offender.—Find Trouble in Handling Case.

One stubborn case of drunkenness eluded the police of the local police force on Saturday and the perpetrator of the misdemeanor has not as yet been apprehended, although the place where the intoxicating beverages were secured, is well known. The actions of the one under the influence of the liquor were such that he was unable to care for his own safety and that the actions were contrary to the dignity of the city.

Although several attempts were made to secure the arrest of the offender, all efforts proved futile. The facts have been given out that a local contractor has filled the radiator of his automobile with alcohol and water to prevent the water from freezing. Due to the cold weather the solution was allowed to run into a pail and the pail placed in the barn where the car was.

During the night the perpetrator of the drunkenness offense appeared on the scene and drank his fill of the solution. While at first thinking it was water, but due to the unusual strength decided to take more than a share.

The owner of the car appeared in the morning and on seeing the offender on the floor of the barn decided that his walk was necessary to relieve the effects of the alcohol and water. A short walk convinced the owner of the car that the fugitive from justice needed a long walk to rid himself of the liquor. On returning to the barn the transgressor fell into a drunken sleep and in a few hours was fit and ready to return to his duties under the direction of the owner of the car.

What makes the case of drunkenness so unusual is that the violator of the peace and dignity of the city was a male belonging to a local contractor which had mistaken the pail of alcohol and water for a pail of water.

ATTORNEY RYAN HAS

FILED DAMAGE SUIT

Damages to the Extent of $800 are Asked in Civil Suit Against Joseph J. Kemmett.

A civil action involving $800 damages has been started in the municipal court by Edward H. Ryan, local attorney, against Joseph J. Kemmett, who is charged with having made a willful and malicious attack on Ryan in this city on November 12.

Judgment is asked on the grounds that the injury inflicted in addition to disgracing the plaintiff, caused him a loss of money in his profession due to his inability to attend cases he had set for trial.

The $800 judgment, which is asked, a share of it, $250, is alleged to have been lost by the plaintiff because he could not be present at the sessions of the circuit court of Rock county here for his cases.

District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie appeared for Kemmett in the court this morning and filed a general denial to the charges made by Ryan. The case was adjourned until December 24.

One man charged with drunkenness was sentenced by Judge Maxfield this morning in court, that being George Miller of Rockford, who was fined the alternative of paying a one dollar fine and costs or three days in jail.

Nels Jagerland, also of Rockford, appeared, but was released by the judge without a sentence.

The cases of Ernest Maurer, Harold Harvey and Michael Boyle, which were to be tried this morning, were all adjourned for one week.

The Daily Novelette

NO MEN'S BEFORE CHRISTMAS

It was two nights before Christmas. Every pavement was a beautiful broad ribbon of white snow, under which lay the softest of slippery ice. And down on the peaceful scene shone 5,675,987 stars.

Through this picture of peace and quiet strolled Armadillo, Twine, a dark, lanky, shaggy cat, and a Quakeridge handy combination burglar took in the other.

Pausing before the window of Titlicus's jewelry store, he sliced a neat, attractive hole out of the plate glass and, thrusting his arm through, selected eight gold Burywater watches, a necklace of assorted pearls, rubies and zirconstones, and an ivory hair comb.

Then he hurried to Eyeopener's fur shop, helped himself to a handsome skimpkin muff and a flivertigbit stole, and continued on the rounds of his best shops until at last he was loaded down with all he could carry.

He was only a block away from his home when Policeman Max Murphy collared him.

"Armadillo, Twine, explain," said Max.

"I admit I got them all through holes in show windows, but every article is going to be given away at a Christmas party on my word of honor. You know how hard times are, officer, and it was either that or let a lot of innocent expectant people suffer."

"That's different," said the policeman, letting go of him. "The same thing's been worryin' me. Thanks for the tip, and now if you'll just give me the location of the stores with the holes in the windows—"

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have gone through many boys and I went with one of them steady for a few months. Then, we quit. It was not after we quit that I found that I loved him. While I was going with him I met another man and I stopped going together. He lives far away, so I've never gone with him, but he has been very nice and kind, but I find it hard to really love more than one at a time. I am twenty and the two are older than I.

Neither knows about the other, but the one in town one is coming in a month if I let him. Would it be proper to write to the first and tell him that I'm not with him? Or would it be better to let the second one come? Just give up the man I love?

IN HOPES.

No, I'm afraid you had better not write to the first man. About all you can do is to be a pleasant and friendly when you meet him and if he seems to be interested still ask him to come to see you. In the meantime I would have the second man come so you must become better acquainted. Do not be in a hurry to decide anything; you're young; wait till you know your own mind positively.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of sixteen. My father is working in another state and is thinking of moving us there, but because of this present war and unsettled conditions he is undecided what to do. There are nine of us. What would you advise us to do about it?

Letters of Two Women

HONORS ARE EVEN.

KERRYVILLE, Kansas.
Your perfectly dreadful letter did me worlds of good. It was like the "Pole" and the "Smart Set" back into a tabloid melodrama. And I had a great row and was enjoying the whole thing immensely. I can't often get here on the prairie, but we get such a taste of excitement. It wasn't so hard on you dearie, I'd be for more.

But really, Kitzie, I don't mean to laugh. It was horrid for you while I lasted. But you know how those people are—all fuss and feathers and not much depth. I don't think you will ever meet with South. South is all bark and little bite. Especially if you deal sternly with her, and I think from your account Paul has done so. I believe the words he spoke to her in Russian. Some of the words, she knows when she is beaten and begins to look elsewhere. It is the feminine law of self-preservation.

In Sonia Luboff's case the worst is over. She is the spectacle of the All bark, little bite. Especially if you deal sternly with her, and I think from your account Paul has done so. I believe the words he spoke to her in Russian. Some of the words, she knows when she is beaten and begins to look elsewhere. It is the feminine law of self-preservation.

Russians of her type aren't keen on having a quarrel in simple words, she knows when she is beaten and begins to look elsewhere. It is the feminine law of self-preservation.

By the way, I have news of my own. But first let me know whether things have calmed down so far. I'm not sure to be in a receptive mood!

Love to your Paul. I'm liking him better and better.

Ever adoringly,
MAIZIE.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain subtle poison which many people let seep into their systems without recognizing it as such.

I mean the habit of regret.

To feed same, normal regret for a wrong course taken, to make up one's mind to use that mistake as a stepping stone to move intelligent choices in the future is the part of every wise and ambitious man.

Longing for the Other Road.

But to get into the habit of constantly regretting this or that, or that other road would have been "better" is neither sane nor normal.

It is a subtle poison that poisons one's happiness.

It is a kind of mild insanity which grows on one powerfully as the years go by.

It is chiefly imaginative people who are subject to this disease. That is because they can always imagine how pleasant the other road would have been. Matter of fact people see only the road before them, good or bad, and are content to be. But the imaginative people can see the other road even more clearly.

They Tantalize Themselves.

Perhaps the other road would not really have been half so pleasant as the one they chose. But they can never know. And so they tantalize themselves with the pictures of its superiority.

Of course I do not mean merely big choices. I mean all sorts of choices, big and little. The way a holiday shall be spent, the location in which the home shall be built, the color of the winter's suit, the choice of a play to go to, the choice of a name for the baby.

I know a woman who has recently built a house. This should have been a very happy time for her for she had been saying and planning for it for years. But she is a person who has permitted herself to get into the habit of regret and her happiness in the house has been poisoned by this habit. If she had only faced the house a little differently, she had thought in time to put the fireplace on the other side of the room, etc., etc. So she dwells on one choice after the other and longs for the other road. From the Subject.

There are two ways to cure this habit. One is to take your decisions thoughtfully and carefully and then, having made them wrench your mind

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt with answer in this paper all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

When a message is written on a visiting card, a line should be drawn through the engraved name and the full name or initials written in the left margin. It was a time, a generation or two ago, when it was considered a sign of the most exquisite refinement, always to keep the little finger straight, stiffly out, and separated as far as possible from the other fingers. It was an age of affectation. At about the same time it was fashionable for women, walking on the street, to let the arms hang in a decided curve, the elbows crooked away from the body. Nothing more absurd and unsightly could have been imagined. Unnatural poses, affectation, and mannerisms, as well as set forms of speech, are out of vogue nowadays; and simple, graceful attitudes have taken their places. When lifting a cup or glass, or otherwise holding with the other fingers.

Gilbert: You had better divide your attentions equally among several girls. It would be very foolish, as well as impudent, for a boy of seventeen to devote himself exclusively to one girl.

The other is to force yourself to remember that, with the passing of the years, things which seemed mistakes will turn out for the best. The woman who built the house has already realized that she put the fireplace in the best position. She suffered as long as regret.

WHEAT-SAVING BREADS

Rolls Oats Muffins—Soak two cups rolled oats in one and one-half cups butter milk or soured milk for about eight hours. For supper start in the morning. When ready to bake add two tablespoons margarine, one well-beaten egg, one cup white flour, one teaspoon each of salt and baking soda, and mix with the flour. If wanted sweet, add a tablespoonful of sugar, but they are delicious without the sugar. Bake in well-greased muffin pans about 20 minutes. Eat hot with butter and cream. The left over can be warmed to taste like fresh baked by putting them in a paper bag in a hot oven for a few minutes.

Cornmeal Muffins—One cup cornmeal, one cup flour, one teaspoon soda, one cup milk, one-quarter cup molasses, one cup sour milk, two eggs, two tablespoons lard or butter. Sift together cornmeal, flour, salt and soda. Add the milk, molasses and lard or butter, and mix thoroughly. Add eggs well beaten and, lastly, the melted lard or butter, if you prefer, but butter being so high in value, use lard or oil. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in moderate oven for half an hour. This will give twelve good sized muffins.

Oat Flakes Bread—Two cups oat flakes, four cups boiling water; let stand all night. Add one-half cup brown sugar, salt, two-thirds cup yeast. Make yeast at noon with potato water. Set bread at night in a mix with the flour. All the wheat flour used is in mixing into hard loaf.

Brown Bread with Crusts—A two-quart can of crusts, soaked in just enough warm water to soften. Beat and add one cup sugar, one cup molasses, rasins if desired, three tablespoons sugar, one spoonful shortening, two quarts flour (sifted). Let stand over night. In the morning, make into three loaves, let stand all night and bake one hour. This recipe saves one quart of fresh flour and is very delicious. May be a bit messy to make the first time, but one learns. It is the best way to use up crusts, especially in a family where small children are cutting teeth and crusts help the gums. Children often form fastidious dislike for crust if forced to eat it with tender gums.

CANNED GREENS.

Pick over the greens carefully. Sort and clean, put in a colander; set colander over boiling water and steam for fifteen minutes. Remove and plunge quickly into cold water. Cut in convenient lengths. Pack tight in jars and season to taste. Add hot water to fill crevices, and place jars in water to each jar. Place jars and tops in position and partially tighten. Place jars in kettle and boil gently for two hours. Remove from kettle. Tighten covers. Invert and cool and test for leakage. Wrap in cool place. This method is suitable for Swiss chard, kale, asparagus, turnip tops, cultivated dandelion and other similar greens.

ONIONS STUFFED WITH PEANUT BUTTER

Peel and boil onions of medium size until tender. Remove centers. Chop the onion centers with an equal quantity of fine bread crumbs. For each cup of this mixture add about four tablespoonsful of peanut butter, one-half teaspoonful salt and a dash of paprika. Stuff the onions with this mixture and bake about eight or ten minutes, basting with a little scalded milk from time to time.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

THE FIFTY PER CENT MOTHER.

A two per cent mother is a female of the species who refuses to nurse her baby. There is something wanting in her moral fibre.

A fifty per cent mother is one who tries but fails to make a lasting success of this supreme duty.

A hundred per cent mother is one who places her duty to her offspring above every other material consideration and sees the baby through the first eight months of life in the only safe manner.

The two per cent creature wants no advice; the hundred per cent mother needs none, we have a few words for the fifty per cent mother, who is not spoiled by nursing habits, but by errors of dress. If you wear a splint on your arm for six months, the arm muscles will grow weak and stiffly out, and you will forget how to support your arm without the aid of the corset. If you employ artificial supports for the breasts, the muscles will atrophy and so you spoil the figure. But this rather interests the two per centers, the maternal deuces.

Early in the child's life, if there is sound reason to believe that breast feeding alone is insufficient, it is wise to supplement the nursing with bottle feedings. It is for the attending physician to prescribe what should go in the bottle. This assistance, after a few weeks the mother generally finds that the bottle feeding can be diminished or cut out altogether.

When the mother is a young nursing mother, she is able to sleep and relief from petty and major worries. A nursing mother must have at least an hour in the open air every day. If she is unable to get out, she should use efficient and insure against irritability and restlessness on the part of the baby nights.

As for filling up on alleged "milk producers," such as malt, beer, tea, food, or taking electrical or massage treatments, we can say that the only sure stimulant to the secretion of milk is the regular nursing of the baby. Officers when the baby fails to acquire the knack of nursing in the first week or two, the breast function will remain inactive; but if an older, more vigorous baby is put to the breast, the secretion of milk will immediately increase.

Finally, the nursing mother should eat everything and anything which is wholesome and agrees with her ordinarily. There is no food which agrees with the mother yet harms the child.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Blacharitis.
For several years a white scaly substance has accumulated at night and sometimes in the daytime on my eyelids. My eyes are seldom inflamed, but the lids often itch. When I remove the scales all my beautiful lashes are pulled out. What is the remedy for this condition? (C. S.)

ANSWER.—It is a common chronic inflammation of the edges of the lids associated with the formation of scales and crusts. Poor general hygiene, dust, smoke, late hours, insufficient sleep, uncorrected errors of refraction and sometimes the careless use of rice powder or other toilet powders. First, have the eyes carefully examined by a skillful oculist, and glasses fitted if necessary. Carefully cleanse all scales or crusts from edges of lids by means of warm water and soap. Dry well. Then smear over the edges of lids some ointment of the yellow oxide or mercury, at bedtime every night.

Metabolism.
Please explain what the word metabolism means, so that I can understand it. (Mrs. A. C. D.)

ANSWER.—All food digested is chemically changed into the kind of material required for growth and for repair of the tissues of the body. The tissues are groups of microscopic cells. These cells are constantly being cast off and renewed. When you use muscles, when you use your brain, when any of your functions are active, tissues or cells are being slowly burned or oxidized to produce the necessary energy, and the products of this combustion must be removed from the body through the kidneys, skin, bowel and lungs. This whole process is called metabolism.

Boric or Boracic.
Please explain the difference between boric and boracic acid. I bought some boric acid and was told to use it to suggestions in one of your articles, but a trained nurse tells me that it is the wrong kind, and that boric acid is the only safe kind to use. (Mrs. L. H. F.)

ANSWER.—Boric acid is an old fashioned way of spelling boric acid.

Menus For Meatless and Wheatless Days

Menus for Meatless and Wheatless Days for Week of December Seventeenth.

Wisconsin grocers and butchers are nobly coming to the front in support of the food administrator's appeals to "save wheat and meat." The products, displayed in the show windows and placed conspicuously in their salesrooms.

Wisconsin housewives are taking quite naturally to the new order of things in the commissary, and with the help of reliable recipes and menu suggestions, find it much simpler to do their shopping as members of the food administration.

Unless recipes are tested and known to be practical, as well as economical, their value becomes doubtful. Thus the members of the home economics staff at the University of Wisconsin have found it worth while to give each and every menu and recipe a careful test before advertising the week's suggestions for the relief of perplexed home managers follow.

Saler of the Friendly Forest

Let me see, I left off in the last story just where Dr. Heron pulled the cork out of Timmy Chipmunk's throat. Then the doctor bird said: "I usually charge ten little bunnies for an operation like this, but seeing it's you, Timmy Chipmunk, and I don't have to come to your house, I'll charge you only five."

As Billy Bunny heard this he winked his tail and wagged his nose at Timothy Chipmunk, and the first thing you know away they went, leaving the doctor with his bill unpaid, which wasn't a nice thing to do.

And as Billy went one way and Timmy the other, by and by they were so far apart they couldn't see each other. And then something happened to the little rabbit. A Mail Wagon almost ran over him. You see, Billy Bunny was so excited that he didn't hear it coming at all.

"I wonder if there's a letter for me?" And then, all of a sudden, he hopped after the wagon and jumped up on the little step at the back. And there, right in front of him, was a package

MASTER WILLIAM BUNNEY.
OLD BRIER PATCH.
SNAKE PATCH CORNER.
"It's for me!" shouted the little rabbit. The driver, almost jumped off his seat, for the little bunny's shout frightened him nearly to death.

"Yes, it's for you," said the postman driver. "I thought you were a robber holding me up. I have to be mighty careful of Uncle Sam's letters these days."

The little rabbit boy opened the package, and what do you think he found? You would never guess, so I'll tell you right off. It was a gold watch and chain. And it was from Uncle Lucky Leftthandfoot, "Uncle Lucky," as he was always called, was very rich, and of course he was very lucky to be rich.

"Now isn't that nice?" said Billy Bunny to himself, and he opened the little note that came with it and read: "To my nephew, William Bunney, from Uncle Lucky."

"Well, go right off and thank him," thought the little rabbit, and away he hopped. And by and by, just as he reached the road that led to his uncle's house, a big storm came up. The rain fell in buckets, and the light ning crashed, and a Wild Wind broke off the tops of the trees. The little rabbit was scared that he hopped into a hollow stump.

"Who are you?" cried a gruff voice. And the winddrops don't turn into gumdrops and break the windows in the candy store I'll tell you in the next story who the gruff voice belonged to.

DEMAND FOR NURSES BRINGS NEW COURSE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 17.—To help meet the increasing shortage of nurses throughout the country, resulting from war demands, the University of Wisconsin has established a new course in home nursing this year. The work is the same as has been given by the Red Cross in various cities, and the instructor is a trained Red Cross nurse. Only senior women are eligible for the course.

Many small towns have lost all nurses in the emergency, and to relieve the emergency, the course aims to train college young women to care for the sick in their own homes, and help in the neighborhood. Although the course does not attempt to train nurses, students who complete it may take an examination from the headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington for a Red Cross certificate, with the probability of being eligible for further training for nurses' aids at base hospitals.

Employers Train Firemen.
To save cost by better hand firing, about 40 Wisconsin employers are having their men trained in a course given by mail by the engineering department of the University of Wisconsin Extension division. All enrolled in the course are firemen in power plants. Other men are voluntarily taking the work to improve their firing so as to secure better wages.

PETEY DINK—NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, THE DOG'S CLEVER.

The YUKON TRAIL

A Tale of the North

By William MacLeod Raine

One from the town along the mossy trail.

They were ascending steadily now along a pathway almost too indistinct to follow. The air was aromatic with pine from a grove that came straggling down the side of a gulch to the brook.

"Do you know, I have a queer feeling that I've seen all this before," the Irish girl said. "Of course I haven't—unless it was in my dreams. Naturally I've thought about Alaska a great deal because my father lived here."

"Yes. He came in with the Klondike stampede," she added quietly. "He died on Bonanza creek two years later."

"Was he a miner?"

"Not until he came north. He had an interest in a claim. It later turned out worthless."

A bit of stiff climbing brought them to a boulder field back of which rose a mountain ridge.

Beyond the boulder field the ridge rose sharply. Gordon looked a little dubiously at Sheba.

"Are you a good climber?"

"I'm sure I must be," she answered with a smile. "I believe I could do the Matterhorn today."

Well up on the shoulder of the ridge they stopped to breathe. The distant noise of falling water came faintly to them.

"We're too far to the left—must have followed the wrong spur," Elliot explained. "Probably we can cut across the face of the mountain."

Presently they came to an impasse. The gulch between the two spurs terminated in a rock wall that fell almost sheer for two hundred feet.

The color in the cheeks beneath the eager eyes of the girl was warm. "Let's try it," she begged.

The young man had noticed that she was as sure-footed as a mountain goat and that she could stand on the edge of a precipice without dizziness. The surface of the wall was broken. What it might be beyond he could not tell, but the first fifty feet was a bit of attractive and not too difficult rock traverse.

They had been following a ledge that narrowed till it ran out. Jutting knobs of feldspar and stunted shrubs growing from crevices offered toe-holds instead of the even foothold of the rock itself. As Gordon looked down at the dizzy fall beneath them his judgment told him they had better go back. He said as much to his companion.

The smile she flashed at him was delightfully provocative. "So you think I'm a 'raid-cat,' Mr. Elliot?"

His inclination marched with hers. It was their first adventure together and he did not want to spoil it by undue caution. There really was not much danger yet so long as they were careful.

Gordon abandoned the traverse and followed an ascending crack in the wall. The going was hard. He looked down at the girl wedged between the slopes of the granite trough.

She read his thought. "The Old Guard never surrenders, sir," was her quick answer as she brushed in salute with the tips of her fingers a stray lock of hair.

The trough was worse than Elliot had expected. It had in it a good deal of loose rubble that started in small slides at the least pressure.

"Be very careful of your footing," he called back anxiously.

A small grassy platform lay above the upper end of the trough, but the last dozen feet of the approach was a very difficult bit. Gordon fought his way up with his back against one wall and his knees pressed to the other. Three feet short of the platform the rock walls became absolutely smooth. The climber could reach within a foot of the top.

"Are you stopped?" asked Sheba. "Looks that way."

A small pine projected from the edge of the shelf out over the precipice. It might be strong enough to bear his weight. It might not. Gordon unbuckled his belt and threw one end over the trunk of the dwarf tree. Gingly he tested it with his weight, then went up hand over hand and worked himself over the edge of the little plateau.

"All right?" the girl called up.

"All right. But you can't make it. I'm coming down again."

"I'd like to try it. I'll stop if it's too hard," she promised.

The strength of her slender wrists surprised him. She struggled up the vertical crevasse inch by inch. His heart was full of fear, for a misstep now would be fatal. He lay down with his face over the ledge and lowered to her the buckled loop of his belt.

The Girl Swung Out Into Space.

Twice she stopped exhausted, her back and her hands pressed against the walls of the trough angle for support.

"Better give it up," he advised.

"Not yet, then." She smiled stubbornly as she shook her head.

Presently her fingers touched the belt.

Gordon edged forward an inch or two farther. "Put your hand through the loop and catch hold of the leather above," he told her.

She did so, and at the same instant her foot slipped. The girl swung out into space suspended by one wrist. The muscles of Elliot hardened into steel as they responded to the strain. His body began to slide very slowly down the incline.

In a moment the acute danger was past. Sheba had found a hold with her feet and relieved somewhat the dead pull upon Elliot.

She had not voiced a cry, but the face that looked up into his was very white.

"Take your time," he said in a quiet, matter-of-fact way.

With his help she came close enough for him to reach her hand. After that it was only a moment before she knelt on the plateau beside him.

"Touch and go, wasn't it?" Sheba tried to smile, but the colorless lips told the young man she was still faint from the shock.

He knew he was going to reproach himself bitterly for having led her into such a risk, but he could not just now afford to waste his energies on regrets. "You might have sprained your wrist," he said lightly as he rose to examine the cliff still to be negotiated.

Her dark eyes looked at him with quick surprise. "So I might," she answered dryly.

But his indifferent tone had the effect upon her of a plunge into cold water. It braced and stiffened her will. If he wanted to ignore the terrible danger through which she had passed, certainly she was not going to remind him of it.

Gordon was mountaineer enough to know that the climb up is safer than the one back. The only possible way for them to go down the trough was for him to lower her by the belt, until she found footing enough to go alone. He did not quite admit it to himself, but in his heart he doubted whether she could make it safely.

The alternative was the cliff face.

CHAPTER IV.

Across the Traverse.

Elliot took off his shoes and turned toward the traverse.

"Think I'll see if I can cross to that stairway. You had better wait here, Miss O'Neill, until we find out if it can be done."

Sheba looked across the cliff and down to the boulder bed two hundred feet below. "You can never do it in the world. Isn't there another way up?"

"No. The wall above us slopes out. I've got to cross to the stairway. If I make it I'm going to get a rope."

"Do you mean you're going back to town for one?"

"Yes."

Her eyes fastened to his in a long, unspoken question. She read the answer. He was afraid to have her try the trough again. To get back to town by way of their roundabout ascent would waste time. If he was going to rescue her before night, he must take the shortest cut, and that was across the face of the sheer cliff. For the first time she understood how serious was their plight.

The glance of the girl swept again the face of the wall he must cross. It could not be done without a rope. Her fear-filled eyes came back to his. "It's my fault. I made you come," she said in a low voice.

"Nonsense," he answered cheerfully. "There's no harm done. If I can't reach the stairway I can come back and go down by the trough."

Sheba assented doubtfully.

It had come on to drizzle again. The rain was fine and cold, almost a mist, and already it was forming a film of ice on the rocks.

"I can't take time to go back by the trough. The point is that I don't want you camped up here after night. There has been no sun on this side of the spur and in the chill of the evening it must get cold even in summer."

He was making his preparations as he talked. His coat he took off and threw down. His shoes he tied by the laces to his belt.

"I'll try not to be very long," he promised.

"It's God's will then, so it is," she sighed, relapsing into the vernacular. Her voice was low and not very steady, for the heart of the girl was heavy. She knew she must not protest his decision. That was not the way to play the game. But somehow the salt had gone from their light-hearted adventure.

Elliot took her little hand in a warm, strong grip. "You're not going to be afraid. We'll work out all right, you know."

"Yes."

"It's not just the thing to leave a lady in the rain when you take her for a walk, but it can't be helped. We'll laugh about it tomorrow."

Would they? she wondered, answering his smile faintly. Her courage was sapped.

He turned to the climb.

"You've forgotten your coat," she reminded.

"I'm traveling light this trip. You'd better slip it on before you get chilled."

Sheba knew he had left it on purpose for her.

Doctor Says Vinol is the Best Tonic

Honest Opinion Doctor Gave His Patient

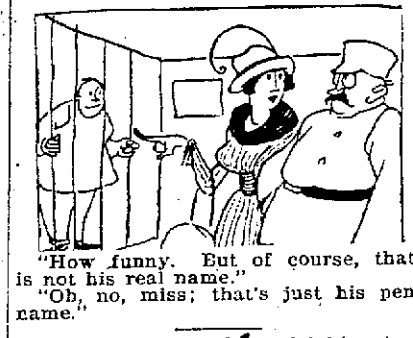

Bedford, Ohio.—"I was in a pitiful condition, weak, nervous and run down so I could not do my housework. I had doctored for years and tried everything under the sun. A friend told me about Vinol. I asked my doctor about it, and he replied, 'It certainly is the best medicine that can be had today. I couldn't give you any better.' I took it, and today I am as well and strong as any woman could wish to be, and it was Vinol that saved me."—Mrs. Frank A. Horkey, Ash St., Bedford, Ohio.

We guarantee this famous cod liver and iron tonic for all such conditions. Smith Drug Co., Janesville. Vinol is sold in Brodhead by W. J. Smith and at the best drug stores in every town and city in the country.

Dinner Stories

"What is the name of that handsome young woman?" asked the impressionable young man.

"No 2208, miss," replied the guard.

"How funny. But of course, that is not his real name."

"Oh, no, miss; that's just his pen name."

A man who had been drinking too much liquor for his own good was induced to sign the pledge the other day. His wife was delighted. She took the document and said:

"You must let me have it. I will keep it for you."

So the paper was confided to her custody. On the next day the man was drinking again as freely as before.

"Now is this?" asked a friend. "You signed the pledge yesterday, and now you are drinking whiskey again."

"It's all right," replied the pledge-signer in unsteady tones. "I don't have to keep that pledge. My wife says she'll keep it for me. That's the kind of a wife to have, old fellow."

The new chap carrying the mess was a polite lad from the west end.

"How'd you like your coffee?" he asked.

Tommy gazed up amazed, and then quick as a trigger:

"Over the top, mate. Over the top."

Jones, the cub reporter, was fat, but he looked as melancholy as a fat man can when he entered the city editor's office.

"Why was my story killed?" he asked gloomily.

"An act of mercy," said the city editor. "You fell down on it first."

CLASS GAMES STAGED THIS AFTERNOON

Freshmen and Sophomores Open the First Game of Tournament in Exciting Contest.

This afternoon immediately following the close of school the opening games of the annual interclass tournament were staged in the high school gymnasium. The freshmen and sophomores opened the contest, followed by the seniors and juniors. Tomorrow afternoon the championship game will be staged, and the winners of these two contests and perhaps the winners of the championship game will meet the faculty team in the latter part of the week.

An extraordinary amount of interest is being shown in these contests, every man realizing that his chance of making the regular squad to represent the high school will be taken from these class teams. Coach Hennings is watching closely the form shown by the members of the different squads with a view of selecting a five to represent the school.

Football Banquet.
This evening at six-thirty the members of this year's football team and the student managers will have their guests to dinner at twenty tables. The football banquet is looked forward to each year with eagerness by all those who have the opportunity to attend, as one of the big features of the school year. A splendid program has been prepared and without a doubt this year's feast will exceed any of previous years. It has been the custom for many years to hold the banquet for the following year's squad at this banquet and no doubt the custom will be observed this year.

Benefit Picture.
The members of the secretary of the high school battalion on the picture given at the Majestic theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week shows that about $100 was cleared over all expenses. This money will go into the battalion fund to be used for the purchase of uniforms.

War Work.
The senior commercial class has not failed to keep the government's call for war work. On Friday last the members of the typewriting class addressed some 250 envelopes to be sent out to the 2200 registrants in Rock county.

BELOIT TAKES GAME FROM LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Strong Defense of Beely Team Proves Undoing of Local Tossers—Final Score is 28 to 12.

Rated as being a poor basket shooter, the Y. M. C. A. team that played against the Beely Manufacturing company five, of Beloit, at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday night by a score of 28 to 12. The Beloit team were slow to get a start and were headed for ten minutes by the "Y" team, but after they got under way they showed the basket with long shots.

Beloit played a consistent game throughout and showed the effects of practice. Their passing was good with the result that they could not be beat through the local guards time after time for baskets. The locals on the other hand could not advance the ball beyond the center of the floor and were forced to shoot long shots at the basket. However, however, was fast and some of the best seen on the "Y" floor for some time. The teams were in good condition and an excellent article of basketball was presented.

Witte and Reimer, playing guards for the Beely's, were towers of strength with their consistent and hard work. They were kept busy throughout with the driving attack of the "Y" forwards who made efforts to break through for points. The lack of fouls on either side was a feature, only one being called on Hettner, in the second half, for pushing a Beloit man when he was shooting for the goal.

Cushing led the scoring for the "Y" with three baskets in the second half. One was secured on a long dribble and a short shot, while the other was made from a distance. Richards and Cassidy scored in the first half but failed to count in the final period.

At the close of the first half the score was 14 to 6 in favor of Beloit, after the light team of the Y. M. C. A. had taken up their duties. The heavy men from Beloit wore down the light men during the first ten minutes and after that it was easy. McCaffery, who started at center for the "Y" turned his ankle and was taken from the game before the half closed. The lineups:

Janesville: Cushing, R. Beely, Richards, Cassidy, Hettner, Galt, Hengeler, McFarland, Phillips, Roberts, White.
Beloit: Witte, Reimer, Hettner, Cassidy, Hettner, Galt, Hengeler, McFarland, Phillips, Roberts, White.

ATHLETICS AT CAMP JACKSON UNPOPULAR

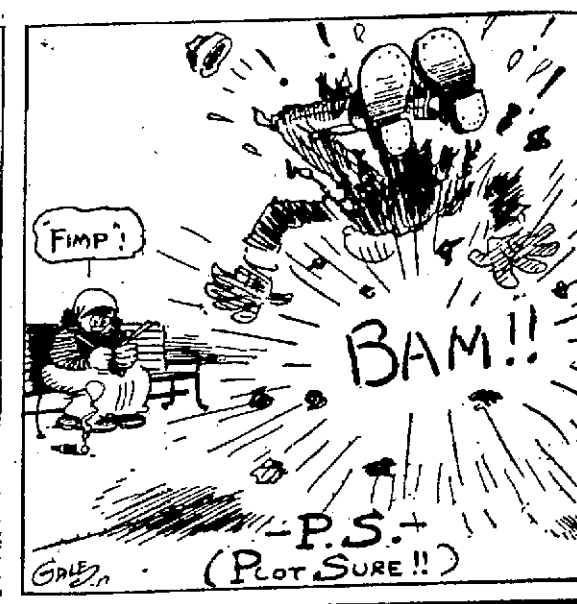

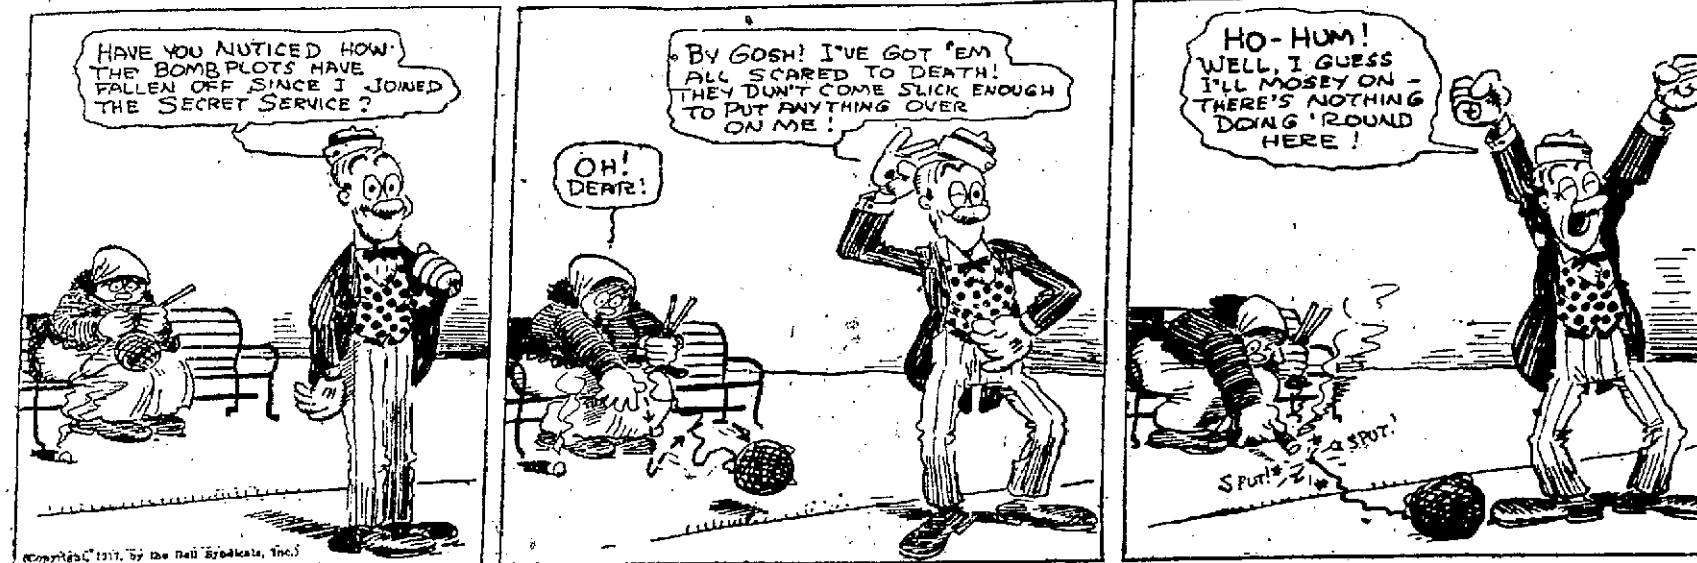

New York, Dec. 17.—For some reason not stated by James S. Driver, athletic director at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., sports is a rather unpopular thing in that environment. The camp, however, is having its activities and preparations are being made to rush them further. In the past few days many have been held in every company, and efforts have been made to develop men about these lines. Regimental and brigade meets have been arranged and the best men from each company will be picked to be sent in to a divisional championship contest. The men according to Driver, are not taking to athletics with the greatest enthusiasm. A baseball league has already been formed and has been started on its way. A team from each regiment is included in the league. Games are played on every Saturday and Sunday. A basketball game is expected to be arranged as soon as more proficiency is attained.

Various forms of athletics are going on, but we haven't yet brought them into an organization," Bender stated to The United Press.

Boxing, according to Bender, is one of the most important parts of the work and the men are eager to get further into it. The Clark Griffith Bat and Ball Fund has made itself felt in this camp as in no other, for so far, it has supplied the men with the only continuous form of athletic endeavor. The track and field meets are part of a general plan worked out for all cantonments. The baseball would have been neglected but for Griffith's work.

Camp Jackson, the same as other cantonments, has its boxing instructor, and this, it appears, soon will usurp the center of popularity. Many sets of boxing gloves have been received and worn out. Clamoring for more has started.

FULTON WILL CLAIM HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

New York, Dec. 17.—Fred Fulton, who is pining to be recognized as the world's heavyweight champion, thinks he sees a way to win a leg on the title.

For the past year or so Fred has been challenging Jess Willard on an average of two or three times a week, but always with the same result—no answer.

And so, having disposed of Thamel Langford, Carlo Morris and several other fighters, Fred has decided that in case the circus king doesn't lend him an ear by the first of January, in consideration of his claims to recognition and a forfeit of one thousand iron men, he will lay claim to the title.

Laying claim to any title in sports and becoming recognized as the rightful owner of said title are two different things. Much depends on the way the sporting public looks at it, and in Fulton's case opinion is bound to be more or less divided.

Fulton is the best of the heavy-weight challengers, but he is far from a wonder of the ring. As a heavy-weight fighter Frederic is perhaps the best plasterer who ever came out of Minnesota, which won't get him much in the fist world. Yet the fact that there are no heavies of real class, and that Fulton is best of a bad lot, will weigh something if he can force Willard to lay his hand on the table and expose his plans.

A good many followers of things distasteful are of the opinion that Willard does not intend to fight again. Some are interested, which are demanding more than the usual amount of attention in these warlike times, are somewhat of a worry, and because he would have to spend three or four months in hard training to get into shape to enter the ring again the chances are against his deciding to do so.

Several wild and woolly rumors have it that Willard is in secret training; that he is spending the winter in getting back into shape, which is a big job for a man who is nearly ninety pounds over his best fighting weight—and that when Spring rolls around he will be ready to listen to the pleadings of the promoters, or promote a heavyweight championship battle himself.

But all such rumors have been taken with a grain of salt by fight followers in the East. They get almost as much attention as the surface question in Timbuctoo. Fact is, the East is losing interest in the heavyweights again, and the little fellows are the popular lads.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

After some six or seven years of languishing in the background the Chicago Cubs appear to have been seized with a new ambition and are now preparing to step out in front with the rest of the real ones. It has been so long since the Cubs have really amounted to much that the sport world will be astonished when they show the speed and class for which they were once famous. Old Grover Alexander is the boy who is looked to to do most all of this for the Cubs and if one pitcher can do it he will just about come through. There's no doubt that Charley Weeghman has put over a large deal and that the Cubs will have greatly benefited. To what extent will be easier to say some time next season.

Hi Myers of the Brooklyn Dodgers hasn't had the applause that he deserves. Last season Myers showed himself to be one of the most versatile players in the big leagues and this in spite of a leg broken early in the season. In his regular position in the outfield Myers ranked fourth with .382 in the fielding averages. He was tied with Deal of Chicago for third place in the third base averages with .387, and he scored averages of .971 and .925 at first and second base. As an all round fielder there are few in front of him.

Five years ago Bombardier Wells knocked out George Rodol in the second round of a bout staged in London. Rodol is a Boer and fought the British in South Africa before he came to the ring. At the time he insisted that he got a raw deal in the bout with the Bombardier. In the long dispute which followed the scrap Rodol claimed that he was waiting for the count of eight to get up when the timekeeper rang the bell and spoiled his rest.

Rodol began fighting in the ring about eight years ago, and whipped all the best amateurs in South Africa. He then went to England and made a very good showing, defeating several heavyweights. Later he went to Paris and met Sam McVey, and Sam put the South African to sleep.

He made an excellent impression on the American when he appeared on this side of the Atlantic. He fought Gunboat Smith, staying with him for ten rounds, and finishing strong. Rodol is over six feet in height, and could reach from the altered trenches across No Man's Land into a German dugout and pull a few helmets out into the open. Maybe he's doing it. Who but the censor knows?

Both Charley White and Benny Leonard declare that they are looking forward eagerly to their twenty-round bout whenever it may take place. It seems probable that they are looking forward more eagerly to one of the fat purses that have been offered for the scrap.

An odd feature of the batting records in the National league this year is that the twelve highest men all played more than 120 games.

Branch Rickey has signed a high school boy of Kentucky to pitch for the St. Louis Cards next season. His name is Stanley Rees and he is said to be quite a child wonder.

Benny Kauff played in more games this year than any other members of the Giant team. The centre fielder missed only five games.

Gene Packard of the Cardinals was the best hitting pitcher in the National league. His average, compiled in thirty-eight games, was .288.

STIRRING ADDRESS BY EX-SENATOR AT RED CROSS MEETING

Former Senator J. M. Whitehead Emphasizes Necessity of Securing Fifteen Million Members Before Christmas Eve.

"Sound words to the Kaiser on Christmas day that twenty millions of Americans stand back of their soldiers," was the message brought to the women assembled at the Red Cross luncheon on Saturday by Senator Whitehead, the speaker of the occasion. "This expression of public sentiment will be of far more value to the morale of the Allied great army than the most eloquent speech of any man. What our Red Cross association needs most at this time is the constituency back of them, to feel that the whole country is with them in their purpose to solve the great problem of relieving the sufferings of humanity. The situation in Europe today," said the speaker, "is past my powers of description. In the western front, the starving and despairing refugees are injured, fed and given back to life again. One thousand children a day are sometimes brought in and are fed and clothed. This without any regard to the wounded who are taken care of."

Two thousand Red Cross nurses are at this time alone are giving their lives to this work. All wounded men are cared for alike, the enemy as well as the allies. And this plea for all who are suffering will be the greatest impetus to remedy the situation after the war is over," was the thought expressed by Mr. Whitehead. The fact was emphasized by Mr. Davidson, the head of the Red Cross War committee, in a speech recently given by Senator Whitehead in Milwaukee, that the credit of the movement is largely due to the women of the country. They are the ones who are doing the work and helping to make this great task possible. "Now," said the speaker, "has the great opportunity been offered the womanhood of our nation to impress their influence on their character on civilization. They must measure up with their opportunity at this time was the thought suggested."

The part the Red Cross services have will be in this drive was explained by Senator Whitehead in the idea that it is to show to the world the Christmas spirit of love and good will toward men. The plan is to have every house to show the flag in the window on Christmas eve, with one cross placed upon it for every member of the family belonging to the Red Cross association. The speaker closed with a plea that this Christmas, when we as a nation stand on the eve of a great conflict, be signalized by a unanimous consecration to this service of mercy, sacrifice and cheer.

Mrs. A. C. Hough, in a few brief words, explained the plan of the campaign for Red Cross membership, which is hoped will bring in at least three thousand members to the local chapter. Half of the membership fee will be used by the Janesville branch to buy materials and the other half sent to the regional headquarters. The first two or three days of the week, it was explained, would be devoted to the business places and down town offices and stores, the latter part to the residence districts. It was hoped that much of the work could be done without house canvases, as that is difficult to do in cold weather.

Informative explanatory to literature and the service days can be secured at the library at the Commercial club rooms and at the People's drug store, said Mrs. Hough. The thought was for everybody to start their Red Cross year now so that it might grow into a permanent custom should increase the significance of both Christmas and the Red Cross.

An appetizing luncheon was served to about one hundred ladies at 12:30 o'clock in the parlors of the Congregational church. One of the dishes on the menu was prepared from the recipe given in the Italian cook book, compiled by Mrs. Julia Cuniberti. The young ladies who served as waiters were Gladys Drummond, Ellen Ewing, Isabel Palmer, Ethel Ransom, Ida Hubbard, Eva Gardner and Helen Green.

EPISCOPAL BISHOP ORDAINS MINISTER

Bishop W. W. Webb Ordains to the Priesthood Rev. Milo Blanchard Goodall, of Evansville—Impressive Service.

With all the impressive services prescribed by the church, the ceremony of ordination was conducted by Bishop W. W. Webb yesterday morning at Trinity church. At this service the Rev. Milo Blanchard Goodall, D.D., was ordained into the sacred priesthood of the Episcopal church. Rev. Goodall has been serving as deacon in charge of St. John's church at Evansville.

The sermon of the day was given by Rev. A. R. Stewart of Nashville, professor in the school where Mr. Goodall graduated last May. The text was taken from Roman's first chapter and first verse, "Separated unto the Gospel of God."

The speaker undertook to answer the question often asked by many, to the reason of having a professional priesthood of the church, the meaning of professional and an expert, and said that a member of the priesthood should not only combine the best thoughts of the two, but have also the authority and station of the church which he represents, behind him. The plan of administering the duties and functions of the church had changed largely since the time of the apostles. Then the disciples were added and the work specialized. Later the order of deacons was added to care for part of the work, and then the priesthood was organized. The life and growth of the church is growing just as living organisms grow and change. This manifold changing is working toward eternity, and yet is ever young. "Eternal life," the speaker said, "is begun here on earth, and there is break when passing on. The life work of priest and people seems oftentimes small and of little importance, but it is the repository of something bigger and greater than earthly institutions." The speaker emphasized the thought that all loyalties, all citizenships and all organizations are eternal, just as much as they have the eternal verities behind them.

In addressing the candidate, Rev. Stewart suggested the thought that the priesthood binds an individual at the same time that it loosens him. "It binds him," said the speaker, "as strongly as a marriage vow, that forsaking all others, he shall hold fast to the precepts of the church. A priest is a man who has forsaken all things before were just and proper to be done, but perhaps there is more liberation than binding in entering the priesthood," said Rev. Stewart. "One is liberated from class distinctions and is free to carry the life and hope of the church wherever it is needed. This life of priestly living is like being bound to a track. This is one of the greatest. One cannot get away, but one can go farther and faster than he otherwise could. This is an age of tremendous shifting of values in which the church should feel at home," said Rev. Stewart. The church is a pilgrim organization, and men are giving up comfort and going out on a quest. The speaker closed with a plea for church people to have the life of Christ with face turned toward the light.

The ordination service was conducted with tender solemnity by Bishop Webb, assisted by Rev. Stewart and Father Wilmann. The latter sang the litany, the responses being made by the boys' choir of twenty-four voices. They also sang an anthem besides assisting in the customary lighted candles, together with vases of roses, adorned the altar, and the new service flag with its ten stars, was displayed at the front of the church.

FRENCH GUNNER IS AWARDED HIGH HONOR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
With the French Armies in the field, Dec. 17.—For making a specialty of capturing German blockhouses and machine guns, French machine-gunner, was today officially announced as recipient of the Military Medal as well as the title of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Van Kemmel is a second Michael O'Leary. Though he is a machine-gunner, the French point has chiefly earned his honors by taking them from the enemy.

When the French troops took the first and second German lines on the Vauclaire plateau, Van Kemmel's part of the attacking wave was held up by an enemy machine gun as it approached the third trench. The French mitrailleuse armed with rifle and several grenades wormed his way forward from shell hole to shell hole to within fifteen yards of the enemy gun. His first grenade killed a German gunner and his second blew the machine-gun from its position. Several Germans rushed forward from shell holes to replace it but Van Kemmel's well-aimed grenades killed a few and forced the others to refuge in a blockhouse. The persistent pursuit followed and bayoneted the first who tried to emerge. The blockhouse was taken and the assaulting wave swept on. Exactly four months later to a day, Van Kemmel was again in the first line and went over the top with the first attacking wave. A little later he found himself alone far ahead of his comrades and seeing a blockhouse he promptly captured it. Two Germans then opened fire on him with a machine-gun from a neighboring shell hole. With only his rifle and fighting the gun single handed the poilu killed one German gunner immediately. The second dropped a few moments later. When his comrades arrived Van Kemmel was calmly mowing the enemy weapon and blockhouse.

Thus with a record of many German accounts for two blockhouses and two machine guns captured, all single handed, Van Kemmel today wears on his breast two of the most highly prized medals of the French Military Service.
